LIGHT VOTE IN CITY ELECTION---LITTLE INTEREST

The city election was held yesterday and many either forgot to vote or didn't care. This was proven by the extremely light vote polled. There was only one ticket in the field which no doubt was the cause for so much apathy. There was only 230 votes polled. In the first 81, second 25, third 50, fourth 75. The entire ticket ran close together, there being a variance of only two or three votes.

CITY ELECTION RESULTS OVER THE NEW STATE

Chicago, Ill., April 3.—The most intense campaign in municipal politics that Chicago has experienced in many years closed last night with the election of Frederick A. Busse, the republican candidate for mayor, over Mayor Edward F. Dunne, his democratic rival and a candidate for re-election, by a plurality of about 14,000 votes.

The total vote for mayor follows:
Busse 164,839
Dunne 151,178
Brubaker, Prohibitionist 5,875
Knoop, Socialist 13,459

The entire democratic ticket was elected at Eufaula, though the mayor won by a majority of only 34.

Guthrie, Ok., April 3.—The entire republican ticket, headed by ex-Gov. C. M. Barnes for mayor, was elected here by majorities ranging from 100 to 500. Five republican aldermen were elected, giving two republican majorities in the city council.

Ardmore, I. T., April 3.—R. W. Dick, the present mayor of this city and democratic candidate for re-election, defeated Mike Gorman, an independent republican candidate, by a safe majority. The entire democratic ticket was elected. The only opposition was in the mayor's and treasurer's race.

Muskogee, Tulsa and Enid elected republican tickets. Wynnewood, Wilburton and Checotah went democratic. In Shawnee the republicans elected the mayor and one alderman; in South McAlester they won the mayor, chief of police and two aldermen.

In Oklahoma City the democrats won a notable victory, considering the city went republican in the last election. Democrats elected mayor, city attorney, treasurer, police judge, chief of police, street commissioner, three of the five aldermen and two of the five members of the school board. Republicans won city clerk, city assessor and school treasurer.

LEE CRUCE DECLINES TO PARTICIPATE IN DEBATES

Oklahoma City, Ok., April 3.—As a result of a conference here between the managers of Lee Cruce of Ardmore, W. H. Haskell of Muskogee and Thomas Doyle of Perry, Democratic candidates for governor, dates were arranged for joint debates between Haskell and Doyle. Cruce declined to enter into the joint debates on the ground that he had no issue to discuss with Haskell before the people and desired to go it alone. Dates between Haskell and Doyle were arranged for April tonight

as follows: El Reno, April 6; Chickasha, April 8; Duncan, April 9; Anadarko, April 10; Lawton, April 11; Hobart, April 12; Oklahoma City, April 13; Ponca City, April 15; Enid, April 18, and Alva, April 19. Other dates will be arranged at another conference to be held in the city later.

Judge C. A. Galbraith was in Oklahoma City Monday night and was assured by the candidates for gubernatorial honors that Ada would get one of these debates.

PRESIDENT IS INCLINED TO STAND BY RAILROADS

Washington, April 2.—President Roosevelt, in declining the invitation of the Illinois Manufacturers association to make an address at Springfield next week on the railroad and financial situation, writes a letter to H. Smith, president of the association, explaining such an address from him at this time would be useless as his position was well understood and as he stands by all his previously expressed views.

From an authoritative source it is learned that the president has not the slightest intention of taking any action which would invalidate railroad securities.

Quoting from his Raleigh address, the president calls attention to his belief that the government should own nothing which can properly be left in private hands, but that such regulations should be made to the railroads as to insure their operation in a spirit of fairness to all concerned. Whatever power the government wields must be with wisdom, caution and self-restraint. Railroads, he declares, must be protected from any public clamor, no matter how violent, when the roads were in the right.

Referring to his Washington address, the president says, railroad rates are not as a rule too high but that the evils that exist are due to unjust discrimination and this should be prevented by law.

John Beard has been appointed local representative of the Oklahoma Jamestown Exposition Co. The idea of the company is to issue stock at one dollar per share to Oklahomans who wish to assist the new state in having an exhibit at the exposition. It is planned that the purchase price will be returned to the stock holders, dollar for dollar, as soon as an appropriation is made by our first legislature. If parties wishing to help in this commendable work will call on Mr. Beard he is prepared to issue stock certificates and give receipts for money paid.

AMPLE PRECEDENT FOR THE SUFFRAGE PROVISION

Washington, April 3.—There is a well defined impression in military and official circles here that some one has started the Spanish War Veterans organization off on a wrong tangent, when these patriotic gentlemen were induced to declare hostilities against the new-born state of Oklahoma, because it provides that the soldiers of the standing army as well as the sailors of the navy of the United States shall not be entitled to vote in that state.

Protests against the constitution of that state have been framed for presentation to the president and it is also on the bill to try to have the encampment of the war veterans, which was to be held in Oklahoma City, taken elsewhere.

A careful study of the situation, and a perusal of the files of the adjutant general's office in the war department, has brought to light the fact that Oklahoma is not the only state which practically disfranchises the American soldier, sailor and marine, but that the manner in which it is effected and the reasons for so doing are so logical and of such vital importance to the rights of the states themselves that it is considered by high army officials, as well as state legislators to be a commendable feature.

Ladies of M. E. Church Meet With Mrs. S. J. Martin.

The Woman's Home Mission Society of the M. E. Church met with Mrs. S. J. Martin Monday afternoon for the last time before her departure for her new home in Kentucky. After the business of the meeting the ladies in attendance, about thirty in number, were entertained from 4 to 5 o'clock by Mrs. Martin and Miss Mollie Jernigan, and a three course luncheon was served.

There were tender good-byes spoken by the ladies, all of whom are loath to see Mrs. Martin depart after her several years' of most pleasant association.

GARDENS FOR THE WORKERS.

Self-Help Movement in France Proving a Great Success.

"The great value of my little garden to me has not been the fine vegetables it has yielded all summer and the good time the children have had in the open air, but the glasses of beer and absinthe my husband hasn't taken," observed the mother of a French workingman's rather numerous family to an investigator last autumn.

"Quite right, mother," echoed a man near by; "you will never know the evil we men don't do while we are busy in our little gardens."

This conversation took place in France, on one of the workingmen's gardens, a movement for self-help which is growing each year, says a writer in the Century. A similar movement was started in Detroit in 1894 under the name of the Pota Patch farms; later carried out successfully in New York and other cities in the vacant lot farms, while to-day Philadelphia is beginning her eighth year of successful effort.

Mme. Hervieu, a charitable woman in Sedan, tired of aiding the poor by gifts of money, attempted to rouse them to self-help by an offer of doubling any sum of money which they should deposit in the local savings bank. She rented a small tract of land and said to the poor people: "Now go to work."

They did, and as they worked the taste for it grew; they kept steadily at it, especially as they knew that the fruits of their labor would belong to them, that the vegetables they raised could be taken to their homes or sold.

Such was the humble beginning in 1899 of a little movement, but one so simple and practical that it grew until last October, in Paris, there was held a congress of workingmen's gardens, attended by 700 delegates, under the presidency of M. Aynard of France.

REALLY A GREAT LADY.

Tribute to Life and Character of Lady Burdett-Coutts.

Lady Burdett-Coutts was one of the very few women who in a restless, chattering society knew how to talk and to listen, says an English writer. To know her was a liberal education. The daughter of Sir Francis Burdett had naturally seen and conversed with the giants of the reform-bill days and met everybody worth meeting for 60 years. Her memory was so good, her sympathy so universal and her manner of expression so happy that a conversation with Lady Burdett-Coutts was like reading a delightful chapter of memoirs. A young member of parliament once asked her what was the meaning of the expression which he had come across in Disraeli's novels that "members used to dine out in their boots." "It means," said the old lady, with her exquisite courtesy, "that they used to dine away from the house and dine with me without dressing, as I hope you will do whenever you can." Judged by modern standards erected by German and American millionaires Lady Burdett-Coutts was not so very rich, but, then, in proportion to her means she gave away ten times as much.

Baggage Smashing.

In Washington one day a distinguished French visitor to this country pointed out to a baggage handler a rather frail gripsack. "Is that strong enough," he asked, "to go in the baggage car?" "I'll see," said the man. He lifted the grip high above his head and threw it on the platform with all his might.

"That," he said, "is what she'll get in Philadelphia."

He took it up again and banged it against the side of a car four or five times.

"That is what she'll get in Chicago," he went on.

He tossed it high in the air, and on its descent jumped on it. This broke the lock open, so that the contents were scattered over the platform.

"And that's what she'll get in Sioux City," he concluded.

"You'd better take her in the Pullman with you, boss," he added, graciously. "If you're going further than Sioux City."—Washington Star.

TALK AS MUCH AS EVER.

Man Thinks 'Phone Has Improved Conversational Powers.

"A count in the indictment against this businesslike age," said the doctor "is that the art of conversation is dying out. I wish respectfully to submit that one of our modern institutions effectually prevents any such catastrophe, if catastrophe it be. I refer to the telephone and its use. I have learned by experience that people not only say a good many disagreeable things over the telephone that they wouldn't say if they were face to face with you, but also that the telephone gives a flip to ordinary conversational powers quite amazing in its results. The detailed statement of symptoms over the telephone is something with which every physician is familiar, and there are patients of a certain mental makeup very apt to diverge easily into general remarks which, however valuable in themselves are singularly devoid of professional interest. I shudder to think what such persons have to offer in the way of talk when they go to the telephone for purely social purposes. Judging from the difficulty I have frequently in getting the wire, I should surmise that we live in a network of society telephone calls—all well enough in their way, but not supporting the hypothesis that as a people we are suffering from dumbness."

DIDN'T SEND THE SEATS.

Actor Not so Gallant as the Fair Ones Had Expected.

A well-known American actor, who is old enough not to consider himself a matinee idol by any means, was somewhat surprised and pleased in a St. Louis hotel a short time ago, when a pretty girl stopped him in the corridor and presented him with a rose, without saying a word. He was more surprised and less pleased to receive a note the following day reminding him of the incident, and asking him to send the giver of the flower two seats at the theater in which he was playing "as a memento of the occasion."

"My dear young lady," the actor replied, waxing sarcastic as he realized what had been the object of the attention he had been paid, "I would be glad to send you the seats you ask for, but, on consultation with the manager of the theater, I have been informed that the seats are all fastened down, and that he is opposed to having them sent away as souvenirs in any event, so that you will have to be contented with an autograph for a souvenir of your benevolence of yesterday instead."—Montreal Herald.

Mail Delivered at Churches.

"That seems a tremendous big bunch of mail to be delivered at a church," remarked an early caller to the sexton.

"A good deal of it belongs to the parishioners," he explained, "I do not mean to the regular worshippers, but to persons who drop in for an occasional service. They are mostly comparative strangers in town. When leaving home they have no idea what they will do or where they will be located, so in order to relieve the anxiety of their friends they give instructions to send their mail to some church of which they have heard. The mere fact that the wanderers have to call at such a place once or twice a week for letters is considered a guaranty of their safety. The pastors welcome such an arrangement. It may be an additional responsibility to take care of the letters, but it keeps them in touch with many strangers who otherwise probably would not go near a church."—N. Y. Sun.

Not Old Enough.

"If I were younger," said the rich old man, "I believe I might win you for my wife."

"Yes," replied the cold beauty, dreamily, considering his 60 years, "or say, 15 or 20 years older."

Making Use of His Time.

"Did you accomplish anything during the session of congress?" "Yes, indeed," answered the statesman. "I got some very good ideas for my summer lecture tour."

Making History.

"Why are you weeping?" asked Alexander's biographer.

"Because the cook put too much cayenne pepper in the sauce!" answered the conqueror. "But don't you dare to say so 'in print!'"

And thus originated the story of his grief because there were no more worlds to conquer.

OVERDRAFTS

It is becoming well known by business men that overdrafts, whether large or small, are not approved by the comptroller of the currency. The large central banks allow overdrafts only in a very small way, and this, it matters not how small, is not approved by the powers that be. This unbusinesslike habit of overdrafts grew out of advancing on moving products, such as cotton, grain and fat stock on the move. The overdraft system is wrong and the man whose account is always overdrawn is the man who spends more money than he makes and will finally have no bank account.

Pierce for Superintendent.

T. F. Pierce announces as candidate for County Superintendent of Education of Pontotoc County, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

Mr. Pierce was born, reared and educated in the state of Alabama. After attending private and public schools of the country, he received his college education at the Southern University of Greensboro, Ala.

Afterwards was graduated with the A. M. degree from one of the largest normal colleges in the United States, the National Normal University of Lebanon, Ohio. Mr. Pierce taught four years in the public schools of Florida and was one of the county examiners for two years. He has taught nine years in the Indian Territory, spending six years in the public schools of McAlester. He is at present one of the high school teachers in the public schools of Roff. If elected to the responsible position to which he aspires, he pledges himself to the best interest of every child in the county, and to building up the public school system of the county.

So crude will be the rural school system on the east side of Oklahoma to begin with that the first county superintendents will be confronted with herculean tasks. The work will require educators of executive ability, of infinite patience, of great resources. The editor has examined several testimonials touching Mr. Pierce's record at places where he has taught, has inspected his certificates, and has heard him highly spoken of by people of this county, both as an educator and as a man. Evidently he is both practical and progressive. Lately he has spent two summer terms in the University of Chicago. He is such a teacher as ever yearns to learn more, however much he may know.

The News is convinced Mr. Pierce possesses the liberal education, the technical training, and the knowledge of territorial scholastic conditions to make an excellent county superintendent. Also that he is a sound, loyal Democrat. Therefore he is with pleasure commended to the Democratic voters of Pontotoc.

SPLENDID APRIL TONIC.

This is known as "Blood-Cleaning time," especially among the older folks, who always take something during this month to clean the blood of impurities and build it up.

The following is the recipe as given by a well-known authority, and anyone can prepare it at home:

Fluid Extract Dandelion one-half ounce, Compound Kargon one ounce, Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla three ounces.

Get these simple ingredients from any good pharmacy and mix by shaking well in a bottle. The dose is one teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

Everybody should take something to help the blood, which becomes impoverished and almost sour after the winter season, especially those who are subject to Rheumatism, Catarrh, Kidney and Bladder trouble.

It is said that one week's use of this mixture will clear the skin of sores, pimples or boils.

This is sound, healthy advice, which will be appreciated by many readers.

Mistaken Identity.

When one is away from home it is all right to be taken for most any old body, capitalist, retired farmer or the like, but when a person is at home he likes to be taken for what he really is.

Comes now a lady, unknown by The News reporter, and after being thoroughly interrogated by said reporter, sprung this one on us: "Do let me tell, who do you suppose I thought you were when I first saw you?" Of course we did not know, and bantered the lady to tell. "Well I knew there was a delegation of the Salvation Army in Ada today," said she, "and I just had it figured out that you were one of their number."

How anyone could be so mistaken we cannot see, and the only thing we can attribute it to is the expression of appeal unavoidably worn on a reporter's face when he queries you, "any news today?"

Carnival Co. is Coming.

Ada is going to have another Street Fair and Carnival. The advance agent of the Great Indian Shows was in town Tuesday completing arrangements with the Merchants' Band for the appearance of his company. He says on every hand in towns where his company has exhibited the people can be heard to remark about the cleanliness and morality of the different attractions. The show has many new and novel features all in keeping with the high standard of morality and excellence maintained by the company. Besides the numerous pay attractions the company presents 4 free features daily, consisting of a wonderful display of marvelous strength and daring in acrobatic feats and evolutions in mid-air. The week commencing April 22nd is the date.

WILL HONOR CUSTER.

MONROE, MICH., TO ERECT MONUMENT TO ITS SOLDIER HERO.

Famous Cavalry Leader Was Born in Ohio, But Always Regarded Wolverine Village as His Home.

Monroe, Mich.—Though he was perhaps the most famous soldier who has ever called Michigan his home, there is as yet, 31 years after his death, no memorial within the borders of the state to Gen. George A. Custer.

To remedy this the citizens of Monroe are now agitating the erection of a handsome monument to this dashing cavalrman who, from his later boyhood, always looked upon Monroe as his home.

Though Gen. Custer was born in Ohio and though his parents continued to live there, with the exception of one year, Custer himself went to school at Monroe and spent much of his time there with his sister, Mrs. Reed, who had married a Monroe man.

His appointment to the military academy at West Point was given him by an Ohio congressman, but it was always to Monroe that he returned for his furloughs during his academy course as well as on his later leaves of absence during the war. There he was married to Miss Libbie Bacon, daughter of Judge Bacon, one of the most prominent of the town's citizens, and there was the sorrow greatest when the dread news came on that Fourth of July of centennial year of the annihilation by the Sioux under Sitting Bull of the gallant general and his whole command of the Seventh cavalry on the Little Big Horn in Montana, eight days previous.

Since that day the federal government has made the site of the "last battle" a national park, marked the route of the Seventh's last march, and erected a handsome monument on the site where Custer himself fell.

But Michigan, on whose name he shed luster by his command of the "Michigan brigade" during 1863 and 1864, has done nothing toward providing a memorial to his deeds.

It was Custer and his "Michigan brigade" that during the civil war restored the cavalry arms to the place it had occupied in the days of Napoleon, when the dashing cavalry charges at Murat were an important factor in almost every battle.

Appointed brigadier general when but two years out of West Point for gallantry in small actions as an officer on the staff of Gen. Pleasanton, commanding the cavalry corps of the Army of the Potomac, Custer was assigned to the "Michigan brigade," composed of the First, Fifth, Sixth and Seventh Michigan regiments of cavalry. At this time the cavalry was rather looked down upon by the other branches of the service, but the tactics of Custer and his "Michigan boys" soon changed all this. Instead of depending upon the carbine, as the cavalry had done in the civil war up to that time, Custer placed his trust in the saber and in the efficiency of the sweeping mounted charge to dismay his enemy. That the cavalry came to be looked upon as an effective force from that time on was due as much to Custer and his actions as to any other single influence.

For a year he commanded the Michigan brigade and then was advanced to the command of the Third division of the cavalry corps. His exploits there attracted the attention of the whole north and that of the south as well, and his generalship during the closing campaign which ended in the surrender of Appomattox left him with the highest individual fame as a cavalry commander of any man, either northern or southern, with the single exception of Phil Sheridan.

After the war, when the principal duty of the cavalry, to which he was assigned as lieutenant colonel of the Seventh, was Indian fighting, Custer's success was as great as it had been against the southern legions, and in not a single instance did it fail, except in the "last battle."

And even there the claim, made at the time by Custer's friends, that his defeat and annihilation were the direct results of the failure of his subordinates to obey his orders has never been disproved, so that there is nothing from his first action in 1861 until he was shot down in the midst of his men on the Little Big Horn in 1876 to tarnish his fame as a brave man, a gallant soldier and a brilliant commander.

The citizens of Monroe have taken up in earnest the matter of a monument to be erected in the city of his adoption and will probably go to the legislature with a request for assistance in raising the money necessary, which it is figured will be about $25,000. Two sites are being considered

PROUD OF HIS NEW NOSE.

Original, Frozen Off, Is Replaced by One of Vulcanite.

Philadelphia.—Greatly altered in appearance, but for the better, David Dodson, of Barnesboro, Pa., walked out of the dental hall of the University of Pennsylvania, proud wearer of a substitute for his nose that was frozen off in a blizzard several years ago.

Last year Dodson prevailed on Dean C. H. Frazier, of the medical department, to attempt to graft a finger of his right hand on his face to form the nose. When the operation was about to prove successful, Dodson, crazed by pain, pulled the finger out of its place and made the operation a failure.

The new nose is made of flesh-colored vulcanite, with black-tin tubes, and is held on the face by means of a pair of bow spectacles and a heavy false mustache.

The case was handled by Philip Kurtz, a senior of the dental department, under the direction of Dr. A. De Witt Gritman.

Pounding Grammar Into Him.

A certain little boy in a village school had fallen into the habit of saying: "I have wrote" and "I have went."

The teacher tried in several ways to break him of the habit, but in vain. So one day she had him remain after school and write the two phrases 100 times each, thinking that in that way he would surely remember to say "I have written" and "I have gone."

A few minutes before he finished his task the teacher was called out of the room. She told him to remain until she returned. When she returned

she found on the desk the phrases correctly written 100 times and beside them a note saying:

"Dear teacher—I have wrote 'I have written' 100 times and I have went home."—Judge.

MRS. MARY C. LAWTON

Women of the Philippines

By Mrs. Henry W. Lawton

Mrs. Lawton Writes of Pleasant Acquaintances Made in the Islands—Ten-Year-Old Girls Expert Cigarette Makers—Women of Lower Class Thrifty, Kindly and Cleanly—Upper Class Women Dainty, Attractive and Vivacious—Fascinating Filipino Belles—The Eloquence of Gestures—Girls Marry Young and Usually Are Happy—No Divorces Allowed—Smoking Among Women General.

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

(The wife of the late Gen. Henry W. Lawton was in the truest sense her distinguished husband's associate and companion during his adventurous army experiences. While devoted to her husband and family, she yet could always find time to interest herself in the families of the soldiers of the garrison. An intelligent observer, she has gathered a large fund of experiences of the most interesting kind.)

My personal knowledge of the women of the Philippines is limited to those of Manila and the surrounding towns. Considering the times, conditions and opportunities, my circle of friends there is not inconsiderable, and whenever the occasion offered I found their kindly hospitality and gentle courtesy unflinching. The Philippines contain many different, distinct tribes and dialects, which I shall not, however, touch upon, but give my own experience and observations.

As in every other country, the women of the Philippines are divided into classes; the high-born ladies who are bright and attractive, dress daintily, possess their horses and carriages, live in luxury, entertain sumptuously and find life altogether agreeable; the middle class—perhaps the happiest, for there is no "noblesse oblige"—who are independent, unconventional, comfortable; and the poorer, whose cares and labors are few, labors light and habits extremely simple.

I was brought in contact with them all and found much to interest me in each.

My introduction was to the sweet-faced, gentle-mannered nuns of Concordia, who so kindly and cordially offered me shelter upon my arrival in Manila, when the recent uprising in the town rendered it dangerous for unprotected Americans. While many of them were natives, I fancy quite a number were brought from Spain, but so long ago they had easily acquired the habits and customs of the country, which under Spanish rule was, after all, much like their own.

The convent, several miles out of Manila, was beautifully situated among tropical shade trees, with fine grounds and an imposing entrance, where one always met with a hospitable welcome. In prosperous times—before the war—this grand old convent was supported by from 600 to 800 pupils. Now there were only 40 destitute girls, whom these good women fed, clothed and sheltered by the labor of their hands.

This was also the case at Convento de Paco, where I soon became an "intimate," learned to know and love the sisters there and shall always remember most gratefully their kindness and sympathy.

Among the many convents in and about Manila there are two more that I knew well—Santa Isabella, in the walled city, where my little girls attended school for a short time, and the one so picturesque on a little island in the Pasig, near Ayala bridge. We are still wearing garments made by the busy fingers there, and the three rag dolls, over whose trousseaus these nuns and even the visiting padre derived much amusement, are treasured in the family as tenderly as ever. For pretty dolls of bisque, paper or even rag are unknown in that country.

My children were profoundly struck with the "nothings" in the way of toys to be found. They were intensely amused one morning at Santa Isabella at the interest created by some large, handsome paper dolls just received from home. Taken to school for the recreation hour, they delayed the opening of the entire school, while nuns and pupils alike gathered around and enjoyed for the first time this—to them—novel sight. My little girls stood on a platform and changed the costumes of these dolls and were quite as entertained as their friends.

The lower class, whose lives are so simple, whose wants are marvelously few, whose occupations are varied and singularly suited to them, interested me strongly. They are apparently as happy living in the end of a casco and keep house with the same ease as those who live on land and occupy a picturesque nipa hut of small proportions, whose roof seems elastic, it sometimes covers so many heads.

These women take in washing, peddle dainty fabrics made of their fruit fibers, make bamboo matting, sew or embroider. Some with large flat baskets of fruits and the invariable betel nut, done up neatly in a spicy leaf held together by a lime paste that evidently renders it more palatable, move from place to place as occasion requires and squat patiently in the shade awaiting customers.

The stalls in markets are also kept principally by women, some of whom live right there with their families. Then the cigar factories furnish occupation to many of all ages. I was astonished to see little girls of not more than nine or ten years with the deftness of experts roll cigarettes and cigars and shred tobacco; while not a few pretty little babies, each clothed only in a short pina shirt, crept around as the mothers worked.

Hundreds are employed in these large factories. They obtain their food for a few pennies from a neighbor conveniently located, whose business it is to furnish them with provisions. I have often watched with a great deal of interest the keen relish with which they gather around the central figure who serves the chosen dish from quaint pottery with a coconut ladle, amid indescribable chatter and undoubted enjoyment. When everyone is satisfied they repair to their homes for the necessary siesta. The hostess clears up her dishes and follows their example and the corner becomes quiet and empty until evening, when the gay scene is repeated.

Their cooking is done out of doors under a bamboo or thatched nipa awning, which protects them from both sun and rain. Many a time has the odorous whiff of a choice tidbit, consisting of spoiled fish and garlic, found its way through our drawing room windows from the nipa shacks of our next-door neighbors.

Several times I had occasion to befriend and extend to them a kindness, for which they were most grateful. They showed their appreciation in occasional neighborly gifts of native fruits, a few fresh eggs when they were scarce in the markets, or some Filipino dish which was both dainty and palatable and which I always returned with a typical American delicacy that pleased them very much.

These women are thrifty, kindly, hospitable, appreciative, music-loving, social, peaceable and cleanly. This last from their own point of view, I grant you, and confess to having seen them deliberately take their sandals off at a muddy crossing, wade over in bare feet, which they then slipped into the sandals, and continued on their way. This and many similar instances reminded one that in principle they were not unlike a certain

"Young lady of Crete,
Who was so exceedingly neat,
She stood on her head
To keep from soiling her feet."

Notwithstanding all this, I shall always maintain they are clean—from their point of view. And on this subject, upon which I have had many arguments, I feel well backed up by the example of a good old Scotch woman, who was ever fairly "open to conviction, but would like to see the man who could convince her."

Now we come to the middle class, who are respectable in every sense. Their houses are spotless, their clothes always neat, their glossy black hair well washed and tidy. These have time to visit and possess at least a shower bath in the house, so they are not obliged to resort to a stream or convenient spigot on the street for the comfort of a bath. They can permit themselves the luxury of a carametta and perhaps a caraboo whose milk is peddled in picturesque jars by some male member of the family. They will take in a little sewing and fine embroidery. They are very expert with the needle and fond of jewelry, and not a few possess some quite pretty pieces of pearls or diamonds quaintly cut.

Perhaps the first peep at the high-born ladies of the land would not be amiss on the Luneta, which was so beautiful in the evening light. There was the bay, with our great warships against the gorgeous coloring of the setting sun on one side, the picturesque wall of old Manila with its heavy gates, ancient moat, fort and sentries on the other. While the band played in the plaza, where seats were provided for multitudes and every nationality was represented, many varieties of vehicles drove around and on down for a mile, where one turned in a small circle around the Andamun monument, returning between cocoanuts and palms to the music and the crowd.

There one met one's friends and acquaintances, looked upon mestizo beauties and Filipino belles and enjoyed alike the unique scene and delicious whiff of the sea. The mestizos are perhaps the prettiest. They have clear, rich, creamy skins, soft, dark eyes and black hair, which is arranged simply but very becomingly. The full-blooded Filipino is darker and often very handsome. Not infrequently one recognizes the small, even, pretty features which proclaim an Indian ancestor and admires the grace which seems to belong peculiarly to the people of that interesting country.

I formed several pleasant personal friendships with these women, visiting them in their homes and inviting them to mine. Upon more than one occasion when an interpreter could not be obtained I was brave enough to venture alone to make social calls. Considering the very limited knowledge of English on one hand and most imperfect Spanish on the other, I have always flattered myself that we came out of it very creditably. It is astonishing how much one can say under these conditions with a few signs and gestures.

Once, one of our favorite American generals, stationed north of Manila, desired to give a social touch toward cementing the friendship and good fellowship between the two nations, and with this end in view asked an army woman to bring a party up to his headquarters for a few days' visit. Upon their arrival the general gave a reception, to which all the principal people of the town were invited. They returned the hospitality promptly and cordially, thereby promoting much pleasant intercourse.

Among the Filipino ladies there was one who will ever hold an agreeable place in the memory of the party, so bright and pretty was she, so quick at repartee and altogether fascinating. During one of the occasions when they were all together, I do not remember now what gave rise to it, her black eyes fairly flashed fire as she said: "But you will never conquer us! You may go on bringing your soldiers to fight us—millions of them—but you will not conquer us!" Then in the most tragic manner she added: "Is-sur-rec-to! To—the-death!"

It was like a bombshell in the midst of this mild, amicable, peaceable assembly.

An American woman stepped up to her quickly but quietly, gently took both the dark hands in hers and smiled in her eyes as she answered: "My dear, we are not going to bring more soldiers; we don't want to fight you. We want to conquer you with love."

With a low bow, indescribable grace and the prettiest little gesture in the world, she said: "We are conquered."

As the Americans were starting back to Manila, in the midst of the good wishes expressed on both sides, waving of handkerchiefs, good-bys and adieus, the pretty girl with twinkling eyes and saucy voice called out: "Adios! Adios! Poco tiempo—boom—boom!" And everybody laughed. Notwithstanding this unwished-for prediction so prettily spoken, the friendships formed then remained and kind feeling was established fact.

As a rule the Filipinos marry very young and the wedding festivities are often kept up for a week. I was invited to a bridal tiffin upon one memorable occasion which began at ten o'clock and was only at its height when I was compelled to leave at five o'clock, but I enjoyed it thoroughly and found the entertainment most interesting.

Their domestic relations are, fortunately, happy, for there are no divorces in that Catholic land. They smoke usually cigarettes, often a slim, light cigar a quarter of a yard long, which I have had hospitably offered me on many occasions.

Indeed, I learned to love their blue skies and bright sunshine, the beautiful scenery and quaint surroundings and found interest in everything. When I left their country that had grown dear to me in so short a time, many of the women of the Philippines whom I am glad to call my friends still came from Imus, Bacoor, Paranaque, Pasay and Pasig to bid me Godspeed.

GARDENS FOR THE WORKERS.

Self-Help Movement in France Proving a Great Success.

"The great value of my little garden to me has not been the fine vegetables it has yielded all summer and the good time the children have had in the open air, but the classes of beer and absinthe my husband hasn't taken," observed the mother of a French workman's rather numerous family to an investigator last autumn.

"Quite right, mother," echoed a man near by. "You will never know the evil we men don't do while we are busy in our little gardens."

This conversation took place in France, on one of the workmen's gardens, a movement for self-help which is growing each year, says a writer in the Century. A similar movement was started in Detroit in 1894 under the name of the Pot Patch; later, carried out successfully in New York and other cities in the vacant lot farms, while to-day Philadelphia is beginning her eighth year of successful effort.

Mme. Hervieu, a charitable woman in Sedan, tired of aiding the poor by gifts of money, attempted to rouse them to self-help by an offer of doubling any sum of money which they should deposit in the local savings bank. She rented a small tract of land and said to the poor people: "Now go to work!"

They did, and as they worked the taste for it grew; they kept steadily at it, especially as they knew that the fruits of their labor would belong to them, that the vegetables they raised could be taken to their homes or sold.

Such was the humble beginning in 1899 of a little movement, but one so simple and practical that it grew until last October, in Paris, there was held a congress of workmen's gardens, attended by 700 delegates, under the presidency of M. Aynard of France.

REALLY A GREAT LADY.

Tribute to Life and Character of Lady Burdett-Coutts.

Lady Burdett-Coutts was one of the very few women who in a restless, chattering society knew how to talk and to listen, says an English writer. To know her was a liberal education. The daughter of Sir Francis Burdett had naturally seen and conversed with the giants of the reform-bill days and met everybody worth meeting for 60 years. Her memory was so good, her sympathy so universal and her manner of expression so happy that a conversation with Lady Burdett-Coutts was like reading a delightful chapter of memoirs. A young member of parliament once asked her what was the meaning of the expression which he had come across in Disraeli's novels that "members used to dine out in their boots." "It means," said the old lady, with her exquisite courtesy, "that they used to dine away from the house and dine with me without dressing, as I hope you will do whenever you can." Judged by modern standards erected by German and American millionaires Lady Burdett-Coutts was not so very rich, but, then, in proportion to her means she gave away ten times as much.

Baggage Smashing.

In Washington one day a distinguished French visitor to this country pointed out to a baggage handler a rather frail gripack. "Is that strong enough," he asked, "to go in the baggage car?" "I'll see," said the man. He lifted the grip high above his head and threw it on the platform with all his might.

"That," he said, "is what she'll get in Philadelphia."

He took it up again and banged it against the side of a car four or five times.

"That is what she'll get in Chicago," he went on.

He tossed it high in the air, and on its descent jumped on it. This broke the lock open, so that the contents were scattered over the platform.

"And that's what she'll get in Sioux City," he concluded.

"You'd better take her in the Pullman with you, boss," he added, graciously. "If you're going further than Sioux City!"—Washington Star.

TALK AS MUCH AS EVER.

Man Thinks 'Phone Has Improved Conversational Powers.

"A count in the indictment against this businesslike age," said the doctor "is that the art of conversation is dying out. I wish respectfully to submit that one of our modern institutions effectually prevents any such catastrophe, if catastrophe it be. I refer to the telephone and its use. I have learned by experience that people not only say a good many disagreeable things over the telephone that they wouldn't say if they were face to face with you, but also that the telephone gives a flip to ordinary conversational powers quite amazing in its results. The detailed statement of symptoms over the telephone is something with which every physician is familiar, and there are patients of a certain mental makeup very apt to diverge easily into general remarks which, however valuable in themselves are singularly devoid of professional interest. I shudder to think what such persons have to offer in the way of talk when they go to the telephone for purely social purposes. Judging from the difficulty I have frequently in getting the wire, I should surmise that we live in a network of society telephone calls—all well enough in their way, but not supporting the hypothesis that as a people we are suffering from dumbness."

DIDN'T SEND THE SEATS.

Actor Not so Gallant as the Fair Ones Had Expected.

A well-known American actor, who is old enough not to consider himself a matinee idol by any means, was somewhat surprised and pleased in a St. Louis hotel a short time ago, when a pretty girl stopped him in the corridor and presented him with a rose, without saying a word. He was more surprised and less pleased to receive a note the following day reminding him of the incident, and asking him to send the giver of the flower two seats at the theater in which he was playing "as a memento of the occasion."

"My dear young lady," the actor replied, waxing sarcastic as he realized what had been the object of the attention he had been paid, "I would be glad to send you the seats you ask for, but, on consultation with the manager of the theater, I have been informed that the seats are all fastened down, and that he is opposed to having them sent away as souvenirs in any event, so that you will have to be contented with an autograph for a souvenir of your benevolence of yesterday instead."—Montreal Herald.

Mail Delivered at Churches.

"That seems a tremendous big bunch of mail to be delivered at a church," remarked an early caller to the sexton.

"A good deal of it belongs to the parishioners," he explained, "I do not mean to the regular worshippers, but to persons who drop in for an occasional service. They are mostly comparative strangers in town. When leaving home they have no idea what they will do or where they will be located, so in order to relieve the anxiety of their friends they give instructions to send their mail to some church of which they have heard. The mere fact that the wanderers have to call at such a place once or twice a week for letters is considered a guaranty of their safety. The pastors welcome such an arrangement. It may be an additional responsibility to take care of the letters, but it keeps them in touch with many strangers who otherwise probably would not go near a church."—N. Y. Sun.

Not Old Enough.

"If I were younger," said the rich old man, "I believe I might win you for my wife."

"Yes," replied the cold beauty, dreamily, considering his 60 years, "or say, 15 or 20 years older."

Making Use of His Time.

"Did you accomplish anything during the session of congress?"

"Yes, indeed," answered the statesman. "I got some very good ideas for my summer lecture tour."

Making History.

"Why are you weeping?" asked Alexander's biographer.

"Because the cook put too much cayenne pepper in the sauce!" answered the conqueror. "But don't you dare to say so 'in print!'"

And thus originated the story of his grief because there were no more worlds to conquer.

OVERDRAFTS

It is becoming well known by business men that overdrafts, whether large or small, are not approved by the comptroller of the currency. The large central banks allow overdrafts only in a very small way, and this, it matters not how small, is not approved by the powers that be. This unbusinesslike habit of overdrafts grew out of advancing on moving products, such as cotton, grain and fat stock on the move. The overdraft system is wrong and the man whose account is always overdrawn is the man who spends more money than he makes and will finally have no bank account.

Pierce for Superintendent.

T. F. Pierce announces as candidate for County Superintendent of Education of Pontotoc County, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

Mr. Pierce was born, reared and educated in the state of Alabama. After attending private and public schools of the country, he received his college education at the Southern University of Greensboro, Ala. Afterwards was graduated with the A. M. degree from one of the largest normal colleges in the United States, the National Normal University of Lebanon, Ohio. Mr. Pierce taught four years in the public schools of Florida and was one of the county examiners for two years. He has taught nine years in the Indian Territory, spending six years in the public schools of McAlester. He is at present one of the high school teachers in the public schools of Roff. If elected to the responsible position to which he aspires, he pledges himself to the best interest of every child in the county, and to building up the public school system of the county.

So crude will be the rural school system on the east side of Oklahoma to begin with that the first county superintendents will be confronted with herculean tasks. The work will require educators of executive ability, of infinite patience, of great resources. The editor has examined several testimonials touching Mr. Pierce's record at places where he has taught, has inspected his certificates, and has heard him highly spoken of by people of this county, both as an educator and as a man. Evidently he is both practical and progressive. Latterly he has spent two summer terms in the University of Chicago. He is such a teacher as ever yearns to learn more, however much he may know.

The News is convinced Mr. Pierce possesses the liberal education, the technical training, and the knowledge of territorial scholastic conditions to make an excellent county superintendent. Also that he is a sound, loyal Democrat. Therefore he is with pleasure commended to the Democratic voters of Pontotoc.

The News extends congratulations to the happy young couple.

SPLENDID APRIL TONIC.

This is known as "Blood-Cleaning time," especially among the older folks, who always take something during this month to clean the blood of impurities and build it up.

The following is the recipe as given by a well-known authority, and anyone can prepare it at home:

Fluid Extract Dandelion one-half ounce, Compound Kargon one ounce, Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla three ounces.

Get these simple ingredients from any good pharmacy and mix by shaking well in a bottle. The dose is one teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

Everybody should take something to help the blood, which becomes impoverished and almost sour after the winter season, especially those who are subject to Rheumatism, Catarrh, Kidney and Bladder trouble.

It is said that one week's use of this mixture will clear the skin of sores, pimples or boils.

This is sound, healthy advice, which will be appreciated by many readers.

Mistaken Identity.

When one is away from home it is all right to be taken for most any old body, capitalist, retired farmer or the like, but when a person is at home he likes to be taken for what he really is.

Come now a lady, unknown by The News reporter, and after being thoroughly interrogated by said reporter, sprung this one on us: "Do let me tell, who do you suppose I thought you were when I first saw you?" Of course we did not know, and bantered the lady to tell. "Well I knew there was a delegation of the Salvation Army in Ada today," said she, "and I just had it figured out that you were one of their number."

How anyone could be so mistaken we cannot see, and the only thing we can attribute it to is the expression of appeal unavoidably worn on a reporter's face when he queries you, "any news today?"

Carnival Co. is Coming.

Ada is going to have another Street Fair and Carnival. The advance agent of the Great Indian Shows was in town Tuesday completing arrangements with the Merchants' Band for the appearance of his company. The show has many new and novel features all in keeping with the high standard of morality and excellence maintained by the company. Besides the numerous pay attractions the company presents 4 free features daily, consisting of a wonderful display of marvelous strength and daring in acrobatic feats and evolutions in mid-air. The week commencing April 22nd is the date.

WILL HONOR CUSTER.

MONROE, MICH., TO ERECT MONUMENT TO ITS SOLDIER HERO.

Famous Cavalry Leader Was Born in Ohio, But Always Regarded Wolverine Village as His Home.

Monroe, Mich.—Though he was perhaps the most famous soldier who has ever called Michigan his home, there is as yet, 31 years after his death, no memorial within the borders of the state to Gen. George A. Custer.

To remedy this the citizens of Monroe are now agitating the erection of a handsome monument to this dashing cavalrman who, from his later boyhood, always looked upon Monroe as his home.

Though Gen. Custer was born in Ohio and though his parents continued to live there, with the exception of one year, Custer himself went to school at Monroe and spent much of his time there with his sister, Mrs. Reed, who had married a Monroe man.

His appointment to the military academy at West Point was given him by an Ohio congressman, but it was always to Monroe that he returned for his furloughs during his academy course as well as on his later leaves of absence during the war. There he was married to Miss Libbie Bacon, daughter of Judge Bacon, one of the most prominent of the town's citizens, and there was the sorrow greatest when the dread news came on that Fourth of July of centennial year of the annihilation by the Sioux under Sitting Bull of the gallant general and his whole command of the Seventh cavalry on the Little Big Horn in Montana, eight days previous.

Since that day the federal government has made the site of the "last battle" a national park, marked the route of the Seventh's last march, and erected a handsome monument on the site where Custer himself fell.

But Michigan, on whose name he shed lustre by his command of the "Michigan brigade" during 1863 and 1864, has done nothing toward providing a memorial to his deeds.

It was Custer and his "Michigan brigade" that during the civil war restored the cavalry arms to the place it had occupied in the days of Napoleon, when the dashing cavalry charges at Murat were an important factor in almost every battle.

Appointed brigadier general when but two years out of West Point for gallantry in small actions as an officer on the staff of Gen. Pleasanton, commanding the cavalry corps of the Army of the Potomac, Custer was assigned to the "Michigan brigade," composed of the First, Fifth, Sixth and Seventh Michigan regiments of cavalry. At this time the cavalry was rather looked down upon by the other branches of the service, but the tactics of Custer and his "Michigan boys" soon changed all this. Instead of depending upon the carbine, as the cavalry had done in the civil war up to that time, Custer placed his trust in the saber and in the efficiency of the sweeping mounted charge to dismay his enemy. That the cavalry came to be looked upon as an effective force from that time on was due as much to Custer and his actions as to any other single influence.

For a year he commanded the Michigan brigade and then was advanced to the command of the Third division of the cavalry corps. His exploits there attracted the attention of the whole north and that of the south as well, and his generalship during the closing campaign which ended in the surrender of Appomattox left him with the highest individual fame as a cavalry commander of any man, either northern or southern, with the single exception of Phil Sheridan.

After the war, when the principal duty of the cavalry, to which he was assigned as lieutenant colonel of the Seventh, was Indian fighting, Custer's success was as great as it had been against the southern legions, and in not a single instance did it fail, except in the "last battle."

And even there the claim, made at the time by Custer's friends, that his defeat and annihilation were the direct results of the failure of his subordinates to obey his orders has never been disproved, so that there is nothing from his first action in 1861 until he was shot down in the midst of his men on the Little Big Horn in 1876 to tarnish his fame as a brave man, a gallant soldier and a brilliant commander.

The citizens of Monroe have taken up in earnest the matter of a monument to be erected in the city of his adoption and will probably go to the legislature with a request for assistance in raising the money necessary, which it is figured will be about $25,000. Two sites are being considered.

PROUD OF HIS NEW NOSE.

Original, Frozen Off, Is Replaced by One of Vulcanite.

Philadelphia.—Greatly altered in appearance, but for the better, David Dodson, of Barnesboro, Pa., walked out of the dental hall of the University of Pennsylvania, proud wearer of a substitute for his nose that was frozen off in a blizzard several years ago.

Last year Dodson prevailed on Dean C. H. Frazier, of the medical department, to attempt to graft a finger of his right hand on his face to form the nose. When the operation was about to prove successful, Dodson, crazed by pain, pulled the finger out of its place and made the operation a failure.

The new nose is made of flesh-colored vulcanite, with black-tin tubes, and is held on the face by means of a pair of bow spectacles and a heavy false mustache.

The case was handled by Philip Kurtz, a senior of the dental department, under the direction of Dr. A. De Witt Gritman.

Pounding Grammar Into Him.

A certain little boy in a village school had fallen into the habit of saying: "I have wrote" and "I have went."

The teacher tried in several ways to break him of the habit, but in vain. So one day he had him remain after school and write the two phrases 100 times each, thinking that in that way he would surely remember to say "I have written" and "I have gone."

A few minutes before he finished his task the teacher was called out of the room. She told him to remain until she returned. When she returned she found on the desk the phrases correctly written 100 times and beside them a note saying: "Dear teacher—I have wrote I have written" 100 times and I have went home."—Judge.

(The wife of the late Gen. Henry W. Lawton was in the truest sense her distinguished husband's associate and companion during his adventurous army experiences. While devoted to her husband and family, she yet could always find time to interest herself in the families of the soldiers of the garrison. An intelligent observer, she has gathered a large fund of experiences of the most interesting kind.)

My personal knowledge of the women of the Philippines is limited to those of Manila and the surrounding towns. Considering the times, conditions and opportunities, my circle of friends there is not inconsiderable, and whenever the occasion offered I found their kindly hospitality and gentle courtesy unfailing. The Philippines contain many different, distinct tribes and dialects, which I shall not, however, touch upon, but give my own experience and observations.

As in every other country, the women of the Philippines are divided into classes; the high-born ladies who are bright and attractive, dress daintily, possess their horses and carriages, live in luxury, entertain sumptuously and find life altogether agreeable; the middle class—perhaps the happiest, for there is no "noblesse oblige"—who are independent, unconventional, comfortable; and the poorer, whose cares and clothes are few, labors light and habits extremely simple.

I was brought in contact with them all and found much to interest me in each.

My introduction was to the sweet-faced, gentle-mannered nuns of Concedia, who so kindly and cordially offered me shelter upon my arrival in Manila, when the recent uprising in the town rendered it dangerous for unprotected Americans. While many of them were natives, I fancy quite a number were brought from Spain, but so long ago they had easily acquired the habits and customs of the country, which under Spanish rule was, after all, much like their own.

The convent, several miles out of Manila, was beautifully situated among tropical shade trees, with fine grounds and an imposing entrance, where one always met with a hospitable welcome. In prosperous times—"before the war"—this grand old convent was supported by from 600 to 800 pupils. Now there were only 40 destitute girls, whom these good women fed, clothed and sheltered by the labor of their hands.

This was also the case at Convento de Paco, where I soon became an "intimate," learned to know and love the sisters there and shall always remember most gratefully their kindness and sympathy.

Among the many convents in and about Manila there are two more that I knew well—Santa Isabella, in the walled city, where my little girls attended school for a short time, and the one so picturesque on a little island in the Pasig, near Ayala bridge. We are still wearing garments made by the busy fingers there, and the three rag dolls, over whose tresses these nuns and even the visiting padre derived much amusement, are treasured in the family as tenderly as ever. For pretty dolls of bisque, paper or even rag are unknown in that country.

My children were profoundly struck with the "nothings" in the way of toys to be found. They were intensely amused one morning at Santa Isabella at the interest created by some large, handsome paper dolls just received from home. Taken to school for the recreation hour, they delayed the opening of the entire school, while nuns and pupils alike gathered around and enjoyed for the first time this—to them—novel sight. My little girls stood on a platform and changed the costumes of these dolls and were quite as entertained as their friends.

The lower class, whose lives are so simple, whose wants are marvelously few, whose occupations are varied and singularly suited to them, interested me strongly. They are apparently as happy living in the end of a casco and keep house with the same ease as those who live on land and occupy a picturesque nipa hut of small proportions, whose roof seems elastic, it sometimes covers so many heads.

These women take in washing, peddle dainty fabrics made of their fruit fibers, make bamboo matting, sew or embroider. Some with large flat baskets of fruits and the invariable betel nut, done up neatly in a spicy leaf held together by a lime paste that evidently renders it more palatable, move from place to place as occasion requires and squat patiently in the shade awaiting customers.

The stalls in markets are also kept principally by women, some of whom live right there with their families. Then the cigar factories furnish occupation to many of all ages. I was astonished to see little girls of not more than nine or ten years with the deftness of experts roll cigarettes and cigars and shred tobacco; while not a few pretty little babies, each clothed only in a short pina shirt, crept around as the mothers worked.

Hundreds are employed in these large factories. They obtain their food for a few pennies from a neighbor conveniently located, whose business it is to furnish them with provisions. I have often watched with a great deal of interest the keen relish with which they gather around the central figure who serves the chosen dish from quaint pottery with a coconut ladle, amid indescribable chatter and undoubted enjoyment. When everyone is satisfied they repair to their homes for the necessary siesta. The hostess clears up her dishes and follows their example and the corner becomes quiet and empty until evening, when the gay scene is repeated.

Their cooking is done out of doors under a bamboo or thatched nipa awning, which protects them from both sun and rain. Many a time has the odoriferous whiff of a choice tidbit, consisting of spoiled fish and garlic, found its way through our drawing room windows from the nipa shacks of our next-door neighbors.

Several times I had occasion to befriend and extend to them a kindness, for which they were most grateful. They showed their appreciation in occasional neighborly gifts of native fruits, a few fresh eggs when they were scarce in the markets, or some Filipino dish which was both dainty and palatable and which I always returned with a typical American delicacy that pleased them very much.

These women are thrifty, kindly, hospitable, appreciative, music-loving, social, peaceable and cleanly. This last from their own point of view, I grant you, and confess to having seen them deliberately take their sandals off at a muddy crossing, wade over in bare feet, which they then slipped into the sandals, and continued on their way. This and many similar instances reminded me that in principle they were not unlike a certain

Young lady of Crete, who was so exceedingly neat.

She stood on her head.

When she got out of bed.

To keep from soiling her feet.

Notwithstanding all this, I shall always maintain they are clean—from their point of view. And on this subject, upon which I have had many arguments, I feel well backed up by the example of a good old Scotch woman, who was ever fairly "open to conviction, but would like to see the man who could convince her."

tion, but would like to see the man who could convince her."

Now we come to the middle class, who are respectable in every sense. Their houses are spotless, their clothes always neat, their glossy black hair well washed and tidy. These have time to visit and possess at least a shower bath in the house, so they are not obliged to resort to a stream or convenient spigot on the street for the comfort of a bath. They can permit themselves the luxury of a carametta and perhaps a caraboo whose milk is peddled in picturesque jars by some male member of the family. They will take in a little sewing and fine embroidery. They are very expert with the needle and fond of jewelry, and not a few possess some quite pretty pieces of pearls or diamonds quaintly cut.

Perhaps the first peep at the high-born ladies of the land would not be amiss on the Luneta, which was so beautiful in the evening light. There was the bay, with our great warships against the gorgeous coloring of the setting sun on one side, the picturesque wall of old Manila with its heavy gates, ancient moat, fort and sentries on the other. While the band played in the plaza, where seats were provided for multitudes and every nationality was represented, many varieties of vehicles drove around and on down for a mile, where one turned in a small circle around the Andra monument, returning between cocoanuts and palms to the music and the crowd.

There one met one's friends and acquaintances, looked upon mestizo beauties and Filipino belles and enjoyed alike the unique scene and delicious whiff of the sea. The mestizas are perhaps the prettiest. They have clear, rich, creamy skins, soft, dark eyes and black hair, which is arranged simply but very becomingly. The full-blooded Filipino is darker and often very handsome. Not infrequently one recognizes the small, even, pretty features which proclaim an Indian ancestor and admires the grace which seems to belong peculiarly to the people of that interesting country.

I formed several pleasant personal friendships with these women, visiting them in their homes and inviting them to mine. Upon more than one occasion when an interpreter could not be obtained I was brave enough to venture alone to make social calls. Considering the very limited knowledge of English on one hand and most imperfect Spanish on the other, I have always flattered myself that we came out of it very creditably. It is astonishing how much one can say under these conditions with a few signs and gestures.

Once, one of our favorite American generals, stationed north of Manila, desired to give a social touch toward cementing the friendship and good fellowship between the two nations, and with this end in view asked an army woman to bring a party up to his headquarters for a few days' visit. Upon their arrival the general gave a reception, to which all the principal people of the town were invited. They returned the hospitality promptly and cordially, thereby promoting much pleasant intercourse.

Among the Filipino ladies there was one who will ever hold an agreeable place in the memory of the party, so bright and pretty was she, so quick at repartee and altogether fascinating. During one of the occasions when they were all together, I do not remember now what gave rise to it, her black eyes fairly flashed fire as she said: "But you will never conquer us! You may go on bringing your soldiers to fight us—millions of them—but you will not conquer us!" Then in the most tragic manner she added: "Is-sur-rec-to! To—the-death!"

It was like a bombshell in the midst of this mild, amicable, peaceable assembly.

An American woman stepped up to her quickly but quietly, gently took both the dark hands in hers and smiled in her eyes as she answered: "My dear, we are not going to bring more soldiers; we don't want to fight you. We want to conquer you with love."

With a low bow, indescribable grace and the prettiest little gesture in the world, she said: "We are conquered."

As the Americans were starting back to Manila, in the midst of the good wishes expressed on both sides, waving of handkerchiefs, good-bys and adieus, the pretty girl with twinkling eyes and saucy voice called out: "Adios! Adios! Poco tiempo—boom—boom!" And everybody laughed. Notwithstanding this unwished-for prediction so prettily spoken, the friendships formed then remained and kind feeling was established fast.

As a rule the Filipinos marry very young and the wedding festivities are often kept up for a week. I was invited to a bridal tiffin upon one memorable occasion which began at ten o'clock and was only at its height when I was compelled to leave at five o'clock, but I enjoyed it thoroughly and found the entertainment most interesting.

Their domestic relations are, fortunately, happy, for there are no divorces in that Catholic land. They smoke usually cigarettes, often a slim, light cigar a quarter of a yard long, which I have had hospitably offered me on many occasions.

Indeed, I learned to love their blue skies and bright sunshine, the beautiful scenery and quiet surroundings and found interest in everything. When I left their country that had grown dear to me in so short a time, many of the women of the Philippines whom I am glad to call my friends still came from Imus, Bacoor, Parañaque, Pasay and Pang to bid me Godspeed.

LIGHT VOTE IN CITY ELECTION---LITTLE INTEREST

The city election was held yesterday and many either forgot to vote or didn't care. This was proven by the extremely light vote polled. There was only one ticket in the field which no doubt was the cause for so much apathy. There was only 230 votes polled. In the first 31, second 25, third 50, fourth 75. The entire ticket ran close together, there being a variance of only two or three votes.

CITY ELECTION RESULTS OVER THE NEW STATE

Chicago, Ill., April 3.—The most intense campaign in municipal politics that Chicago has experienced in many years closed last night with the election of Frederick A. Busse, the republican candidate for mayor, over Mayor Edward F. Dunne, his democratic rival and a candidate for re-election, by a plurality of about 14,000 votes.

The total vote for mayor follows:
Busse 164,839
Dunne 151,178
Brubaker, Prohibitionist 5,875
Knoop, Socialist 13,459

The entire democratic ticket was elected at Eufaula, though the mayor won by a majority of only 34.

Guthrie, Ok., April 3.—The entire republican ticket, headed by ex-Gov. C. M. Barnes for mayor, was elected here by majorities ranging from 100 to 500. Five republican aldermen were elected, giving two republican majorities in the city council.

Ardmore, I. T., April 3.—R. W. Dick, the present mayor of this city and democratic candidate for re-election, defeated Mike Gorman, an independent republican candidate, by a safe majority. The entire democratic ticket was elected. The only opposition was in the mayor's and treasurer's race.

Muskogee, Tulsa and Enid elected republican tickets. Wynnewood, Wilburton and Checotah went democratic. In Shawnee the republicans elected the mayor and one alderman; in South McAlester they won the mayor, chief of police and two aldermen.

In Oklahoma City the democrats won a notable victory, considering the city went republican in the last election. Democrats elected mayor, city attorney, treasurer, police judge, chief of police, street commissioner, three of the five aldermen and two of the five members of the school board. Republicans won city clerk, city assessor and school treasurer.

LEE CRUCE DECLINES TO PARTICIPATE IN DEBATES

Oklahoma City, Ok., April 3.—As a result of a conference here between the managers of Lee Cruce of Ardmore, W. H. Haskell of Muskogee and Thomas Doyle of Perry, Democratic candidates for governor, dates were arranged for joint debates between Haskell and Doyle. Cruce declined to enter into the joint debates on the ground that he had no issue to discuss with Haskell before the people and desired to go alone. Dates between Haskell and Doyle were arranged for April tonight

as follows: El Reno, April 6; Chickasha, April 8; Duncan, April 9; Anadarko, April 10; Lawton, April 11; Hobart, April 12; Oklahoma City, April 13; Ponca City, April 15; Enid, April 18, and Alva, April 19. Other dates will be arranged at another conference to be held in the city later.

Judge C. A. Galbraith was in Oklahoma City Monday night and was assured by the candidates for gubernatorial honors that Ada would get one of these debates.

PRESIDENT IS INCLINED TO STAND BY RAILROADS

Washington, April 2.—President Roosevelt, in declining the invitation of the Illinois Manufacturers association to make an address at Springfield next week on the railroad and financial situation, writes a letter to H. Smith, president of the association, explaining such an address from him at this time would be useless as his position was well understood and as he stands by all his previously expressed views.

From an authoritative source it is learned that the president has not the slightest intention of taking any action which would invalidate railroad certificates.

Quoting from his Raleigh address, the president calls attention to his belief that the government should own nothing which can properly be left in private hands, but that such regulations should be made to the railroads as to insure their operation in a spirit of fairness to all concerned. Whatever power the government wields must be with wisdom, caution and self-restraint. Railroads, he declares, must be protected from any public clamor, no matter how violent, when the roads were in the right.

Referring to his Washington address, the president says, railroad rates are not as a rule too high but that the evils that exist are due to unjust discrimination and this should be prevented by law.

John Beard has been appointed local representative of the Oklahoma Jamestown Exposition Co. The idea of the company is to issue stock at one dollar per share to Oklahomans who wish to assist the new state in having an exhibit at the exposition. It is planned that the purchase price will be returned to the stock holders, dollar for dollar, as soon as an appropriation is made by our first legislature. If parties wishing to help in this commendable work will call on Mr. Beard he is prepared to issue stock certificates and give receipts for money paid.

FURNITURE AND COFFINS

AMPLE PRECEDENT FOR THE SUFFRAGE PROVISION

Washington, April 3.—There is a well defined impression in military and official circles here that some one has started the Spanish War Veterans organization off on a wrong tangent, when these patriotic gentlemen were induced to declare hostilities against the new-born state of Oklahoma, because it provides that the soldiers of the standing army as well as the sailors of the navy of the United States shall not be entitled to vote in that state.

Protests against the constitution of that state have been framed for presentation to the president and it is also on the bill to try to have the encampment of the war veterans, which was to be held in Oklahoma City, taken elsewhere.

A careful study of the situation, and a perusal of the files of the adjutant general's office in the war department, has brought to light the fact that Oklahoma is not the only state which practically disfranchises the American soldier, sailor and marine, but that the manner in which it is effected and the reasons for so doing are so logical and of such vital importance to the rights of the states themselves that it is considered by high army officials, as well as state legislators to be a commendable feature.

Self Help Movement in France Proving a Great Success

The great value of my little garden to me has not been the fine vegetables it has yielded all summer and the good time the children have had in the open air but the classes of beet and asparagus my husband hasn't taken observed the mother of a French workman's rather numerous family to an investigator last autumn.

Quite right mother, echoed a man near by, you will never know the evil we men don't do while we are busy in our little gardens.

This conversation took place in France on one of the workmen's gardens a movement for self help which is growing each year says a writer in the Century. A similar movement was started in Detroit in 1911 under the name of the Pot Patch League, later carried out successfully in New York and other cities in the vacant lot fumes while today Philadelphia is beginning her eighth year of successful effort.

Miss Hecover, a charitable woman in Sedan tried of aiding the poor by gifts of money, attempt to teach them to self help by an offer of donations in sum of money which they should deposit in the local savings bank. She rented a small tract of land and sold to the poor people.

Now go to work. They did and as they worked the fast in a few days they started at it especially as they knew that the fruits of their labor would be theirs. They had a little garden and could be taken to their homes or sold.

Such was the humble beginning in 1911 of a little movement but one so simple and practical that it knew and last October in Paris there was held a congress of French gardeners and attended by 700 delegates under the presidency of M. A. and of France.

REALLY A GREAT LADY

Tribute to Life and Character of Lady Burdett Coutts

Lady Burdett Coutts was one of the very few women who in a restless chattering society knew how to talk and to listen says an English writer. To know her was a liberal education. The daughter of Sir Francis Burdett had naturally seen and conversed with the giants of the reform bill days and met everybody worth meeting for 60 years. Her memory was so good her sympathy so universal and her manner of expression so happy that a conversation with Lady Burdett Coutts was like reading a delightful chapter of memoirs. A young member of parliament once asked her what was the meaning of the expression which he had come across in Disraeli's novels that "members used to dine out in their boots." "It means," said the old lady with her exquisite courtesy, "that they used to dine away from the house and dine with me without dressing as I hope you will do whenever you can. Judged by modern standards erected by German and American millionaires Lady Burdett-Coutts was not so very rich, but, then, in proportion to her means she gave away ten times as much.

Baggage Smashing.

In Washington one day a distinguished French visitor to this country pointed out to a baggage handler a rather frail grip sack. "Is that strong enough," he asked, "to go in the baggage car?" "I'll see," said the man. He lifted the grip high above his head and threw it on the platform with all his might.

That, he said, is what shall get in Philadelphia.

He took it up again and banged it against the side of a car four or five times.

That is what shall get in Chicago, he went on.

He tossed it high in the air and on its descent jumped on it. This broke the lock open so that the contents were scattered over the platform.

And that's what shall get in Sioux City, he concluded.

You'd better take her in the Pull man with you boss, he added graciously. If you're going further than Sioux City. —Washington Star

TALK AS MUCH AS EVER

Man Thinks 'Phone Has Improved Conversational Powers

A count in the indictment against this businesslike age, said the doctor is that the art of conversation is dying out. I wish respectfully to submit that one of our modern institutions effectively prevents any such catastrophe. If catastrophe it be, I refer to the telephone and its use. I have learned by experience that people not only say a good many disagreeable things over the telephone but they wouldn't say it if they were face to face with you, but also that the telephone gives a full and ordinary conversational conversation in its results.

The detached sentiment of symptoms over the telephone is something with which every physician is familiar and the patients of a certain mental and physical type are very easily influenced by the words which they hear. I should like to think what such persons have to offer in the way of aid when they are in the telephone for purely social purposes. I have from the difficulty I have frequently in getting the word I should suppose that we live in a world of society telephone calls—all well enough in their way but not supporting the hypothesis that is a people we are suffering from loneliness.

NOT OLD ENOUGH

RAILROAD TIME TABLE

Actor Not so Gallant as the Fair Ones Had Expected

A well-known American actor who is old enough not to consider himself a matinee idol by any means, was somewhat surprised and pleased in a St. Louis hotel a short time ago when a pretty girl stopped him in the corridor and presented him with a rose without saying a word. He was more surprised and less pleased to receive a note the following day reminding him of the incident and asking him to send the girl of the flower two seats at the theater in which he was playing "as a memento of the occasion."

"My dear young lady," the actor replied waxing sarcastic as he realized what had been the object of the attention he had been paid. "I would be glad to send you the seats you ask for, but, on consultation with the manager of the theater I have been informed that the seats are all fastened down and that he is opposed to having them sent away as souvenirs in any event, so that you will have to be contented with an autograph for a souvenir of your benevolence of yesterday instead." —Montreal Herald.

MAIL DELIVERED AT CHURCHES.

"That seems a tremendous big bunch of mail to be delivered at a church," remarked an early caller to the sexton.

A good deal of it belongs to the parishioners, he explained. I do not mean to the regular worshippers but to persons who drop in for an occasional service. They are mostly comparative strangers in town. When leaving home they have no idea what they will do or where they will be located so in order to relieve the anxiety of their friends they give instructions to send their mail to some church of which they have heard.

The mere fact that the wanderers have to call at such a place once or twice a week for letters is considered a guaranty of their safety. The pastors welcome such an arrangement. It may be an additional responsibility to take care of the letters but it keeps them in touch with many strangers who otherwise probably would not go near a church. —N. Y. Sun

It is becoming well known by business men that overdrafts, whether large or small, are not approved by the comptroller of the currency. The large central banks allow overdrafts only in a very small way, and this, it matters not how small, is not approved by the powers that be. This unbusinesslike habit of overdrafts grew out of advancing on moving property such as cotton, grain and fat stock on the move. The overdraft system is wrong and the man whose account is always overdrawn is the man who spends more money than he makes and will finally have no bank account.

Pierce for Superintendent.

T. F. Pierce announces as candidate for County Superintendent of Education of Pontotoc County, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

Mr. Pierce was born, reared and educated in the state of Alabama. After attending private and public schools of the country, he received his college education at the Southern University of Greensboro, Ala. Afterwards was graduated with the A. M. degree from one of the largest normal colleges in the United States, the National Normal University of Lebanon, Ohio. Mr. Pierce taught four years in the public schools of Florida and was one of the county examiners for two years. He has taught nine years in the Indian Territory, spending six years in the public schools of McAlester. He is at present one of the high school teachers in the public schools of Roff. If elected to the responsible position to which he aspires, he pledges himself to the best interest of every child in the county, and to building up the public school system of the county.

So crude will be the rural school system on the east side of Oklahoma to begin with that the first county superintendents will be confronted with herculean tasks. The work will require educators of executive ability, of infinite patience, of great resources. The editor has examined several testimonials touching Mr. Pierce's record at places where he has taught, has inspected his certificates, and has heard him highly spoken of by people of this county, both as an educator and as a man. Evidently he is both practical and progressive. Latterly he has spent two summer terms in the University of Chicago. He is such a teacher as ever yearns to learn more, however much he may know.

The News is convinced Mr. Pierce possesses the liberal education, the technical training, and the knowledge of territorial scholastic conditions to make an excellent county superintendent. Also that he is a sound, loyal Democrat. Therefore he is with pleasure commended to the Democratic voters of Pontotoc.

SPLENDID APRIL TONIC.

This is known as "Blood-Cleaning time," especially among the older folks, who always take something during this month to clean the blood of impurities and build it up.

The following is the recipe as given by a well-known authority, and anyone can prepare it at home:

Fluid Extract Dandelion one-half ounce, Compound Kargon one ounce, Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla three ounces.

Get these simple ingredients from any good pharmacy and mix by shaking well in a bottle. The dose is one teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

Everybody should take something to help the blood, which becomes impoverished and almost sour after the winter season, especially those who are subject to Rheumatism, Catarrh, Kidney and Bladder trouble.

It is said that one week's use of this mixture will clear the skin of sores, pimples or boils.

This is sound, healthy advice, which will be appreciated by many readers.

Mistaken Identity.

When one is away from home it is all right to be taken for most any old body, capitalist, retired farmer or the like, but when a person is at home he likes to be taken for what he really is.

Comes now a lady, unknown by The News reporter, and after being thoroughly interrogated by said reporter, sprung this one on us: "Do let me tell, who do you suppose I thought you were when I first saw you?" Of course we did not know, and bantered the lady to tell. "Well I knew there was a delegation of the Salvation Army in Ada today," said she, "and I just had it figured out that you were one of their number."

How anyone could be so mistaken we cannot see, and the only thing we can attribute it to is the expression of appeal unavoidably worn on a reporter's face when he queries you, "any news today?"

The show has many new and novel features all in keeping with the high standard of morality and excellence maintained by the company. Besides the numerous gay attractions the company presents 4 free features daily, consisting of a wonderful display of marvelous strength and daring in acrobatic feats and evolutions in mid-air. The week commencing April 22nd is the date.

WILL HONOR CUSTER.

MONROE, MICH., TO ERECT MONUMENT TO ITS SOLDIER HERO.

Famous Cavalry Leader Was Born in Ohio, But Always Regarded Wolverine Village as His Home.

Monroe, Mich.—Though he was perhaps the most famous soldier who has ever called Michigan his home, there is as yet, 31 years after his death, no memorial within the borders of the state to Gen. George A. Custer.

To remedy this the citizens of Monroe are now agitating the erection of a handsome monument to this dashing cavalryman who, from his later boyhood, always looked upon Monroe as his home.

Though Gen. Custer was born in Ohio and though his parents continued to live there, with the exception of one year, Custer himself went to school at Monroe and spent much of his time there with his sister, Mrs. Reed, who had married a Monroe man.

His appointment to the military academy at West Point was given him by an Ohio congressman, but it was always to Monroe that he returned for his furloughs during his academy course as well as on his later leaves of absence during the war. There he was married to Miss Libbie Bacon, daughter of Judge Bacon, one of the most prominent of the town's citizens, and there was the sorrow greatest when the dread news came on that Fourth of July of centennial year of the annihilation by the Sioux under Sitting Bull of the gallant general and his whole command of the Seventh cavalry on the Little Big Horn in Montana, eight days previous.

Since that day the federal government has made the site of the "last battle" a national park, marked the route of the Seventh's last march, and erected a handsome monument on the site where Custer himself fell.

But Michigan, on whose name he shed lustre by his command of the "Michigan brigade" during 1863 and 1864, has done nothing toward providing a memorial to his deeds.

It was Custer and his "Michigan brigade" that during the civil war restored the cavalry arms to the place it had occupied in the days of Napoleon, when the dashing cavalry charges at Murat were an important factor in almost every battle.

Appointed brigadier general when but two years out of West Point for gallantry in small actions as an officer on the staff of Gen. Pleasanton, commanding the cavalry corps of the Army of the Potomac, Custer was assigned to the "Michigan brigade," composed of the First, Fifth, Sixth and Seventh Michigan regiments of cavalry. At this time the cavalry was rather looked down upon by the other branches of the service, but the tactics of Custer and his "Michigan boys" soon changed all this. Instead of depending upon the carbine, as the cavalry had done in the civil war up to that time, Custer placed his trust in the saber and in the efficiency of the sweeping mounted charge to dismay his enemy. That the cavalry came to be looked upon as an effective force from that time on was due as much to Custer and his actions as to any other single influence.

For a year he commanded the Michigan brigade and then was advanced to the command of the Third division of the cavalry corps. His exploits there attracted the attention of the whole north and that of the south as well, and his generalship during the closing campaign which ended in the surrender of Appomattox left him with the highest individual fame as a cavalry commander of any man, either northern or southern, with the single exception of Phil Sheridan.

After the war, when the principal duty of the cavalry, to which he was assigned as lieutenant colonel of the Seventh, was Indian fighting, Custer's success was as great as it had been against the southern legions, and in not a single instance did it fail, except in the "last battle."

And even there the claim, made at the time by Custer's friends, that his defeat and annihilation were the direct results of the failure of his subordinates to obey his orders has never been disproved, so that there is nothing from his first action in 1861 until he was shot down in the midst of his men on the Little Big Horn in 1876 to tarnish his fame as a brave man, a gallant soldier and a brilliant commander.

The citizens of Monroe have taken up in earnest the matter of a monument to be erected in the city of his adoption and will probably go to the legislature with a request for assistance in raising the money necessary, which it is figured will be about $25,000. Two sites are being considered.

PROUD OF HIS NEW NOSE.

Original, Frozen Off, Is Replaced by One of Vulcanite.

Philadelphia.—Greatly altered in appearance, but for the better, David Dodson, of Barnesboro, Pa., walked out of the dental hall of the University of Pennsylvania, proud wearer of a substitute for his nose that was frozen off in a bilizard several years ago.

Last year Dodson prevailed on Dean C. H. Frazier, of the medical department, to attempt to graft a finger of his right hand on his face to form the nose. When the operation was about to prove successful, Dodson, crazed by pain, pulled the finger out of its place and made the operation a failure.

The new nose is made of flesh-colored vulcanite, with black-tube, and is held on the face by means of a pair of bow spectacles and a heavy false mustache.

The case was handled by Philip Kurtz, a senior of the dental department, under the direction of Dr. A. De Wilt Gritman.

Pounding Grammar Into Him.

A certain little boy in a village school had fallen into the habit of saying: "I have wrote" and "I have went."

The teacher tried in several ways to break him of the habit, but in vain. So one day she had him remain after school and write the two phrases 100 times each, thinking that in that way he would surely remember to say "I have written" and "I have gone."

A few minutes before he finished his task the teacher was called out of the room. She told him to remain until she returned. When she returned

she found on the desk the phrases correctly written 100 times and beside them a note saying:

"Dear teacher—I have wrote 'I have written' 100 times and I have went home."—Judge.

MRS. MARY C. LAWTON

Women of the Philippines

By Mrs. Henry W. Lawton

Mrs. Lawton Writes of Pleasant Acquaintances Made in the Islands—Ten-Year-Old Girls Expert Cigarette Makers—Women of Lower Class Thrifty, Kindly and Cleanly—Upper Class Women Dainty, Attractive and Vivacious—Fascinating Filipino Belles—The Eloquence of Gestures—Girls Marry Young, and Usually Are Happy—No Divorces Allowed—Smoking Among Women General.

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Novies.)

(The wife of the late Gen. Henry W. Lawton was in the truest sense her distinguished husband's associate and companion during his adventurous army experiences. While devoted to her husband and family, she yet could always find time to interest herself in the families of the soldiers of the garrison. An intelligent observer, she has gathered a large fund of experiences of the most interesting kind.)

My personal knowledge of the women of the Philippines is limited to those of Manila and the surrounding towns. Considering the times, conditions and opportunities, my circle of friends there is not inconsiderable, and whenever the occasion offered I found their kindly hospitality and gentle courtesy unfailing. The Philippines contain many different, distinct tribes and dialects, which I shall not, however, touch upon, but give my own experience and observations.

As in every other country, the women of the Philippines are divided into classes; the high-born ladies who are bright and attractive, dress daintily, possess their horses and carriages, live in luxury, entertain sumptuously and find life altogether agreeable; the middle class—perhaps the happiest, for there is no "noblesse oblige"—who are independent, unconventional, comfortable; and the poorer, whose cares and clothes are few, labors light and habits extremely simple.

I was brought in contact with them all and found much to interest me in each.

My introduction was to the sweet-faced, gentle-mannered nuns of Concordia, who so kindly and cordially offered me shelter upon my arrival in Manila, when the recent uprising in the town rendered it dangerous for unprotected Americans. While many of them were natives, I fancy quite a number were brought from Spain, but so long ago they had easily acquired the habits and customs of the country, which under Spanish rule was, after all, much like their own.

The convent, several miles out of Manila, was beautifully situated among tropical shade trees, with fine grounds and an imposing entrance, where one always met with a hospitable welcome. In prosperous times—"before the war"—this grand old convent was supported by from 600 to 800 pupils. Now there were only 40 destitute girls, whom these good women fed, clothed and sheltered by the labor of their hands.

This was also the case at Convento de Paco, where I soon became an "intimate," learned to know and love the sisters there and shall always remember most gratefully their kindness and sympathy.

Among the many convents in and about Manila there are two more that I knew well—Santa Isabella, in the walled city, where my little girls attended school for a short time, and the one so picturesque on a little island in the Pasig, near Ayala bridge. We are still wearing garments made by the busy fingers there, and the three rag dolls, over whose trousseaus these nuns and even the visiting padre derived much amusement, are treasured in the family as tenderly as ever. For pretty dolls of bisque, paper or even rag are unknown in that country.

My children were profoundly struck with the "nothings" in the way of toys to be found. They were intensely amused one morning at Santa Isabella at the interest created by some large, handsome paper dolls just received from home. Taken to school for the recreation hour, they delayed the opening of the entire school, while nuns and pupils alike gathered around and enjoyed for the first time this—to them—novel sight. My little girls stood on a platform and changed the costumes of these dolls and were quite as entertained as their friends.

The lower class, whose lives are so simple, whose wants are marvelously few, whose occupations are varied and singularly suited to them, interested me strongly. They are apparently as happy living in the end of a casco and keep house with the same ease as those who live on land and occupy a picturesque nipa hut of small proportions, whose roof seems elastic, it sometimes covers so many heads.

These women take in washing, peddle dainty fabrics made of their fruit fibers, make bamboo matting, sew or embroider. Some with large flat baskets of fruits and the invariable betel nut, done up neatly in a spiky leaf held together by a lime paste that evidently renders it more palatable, move from place to place as occasion requires and squat patiently in the shade awaiting customers.

The stalls in markets are also kept principally by women, some of whom live right there with their families. Then the cigar factories furnish occupation to many of all ages. I was astonished to see little girls of not more than nine or ten years with the deftness of experts roll cigarettes and cigars and shred tobacco; while not a few pretty little babies, each clothed only in a short pina shirt, crept around as the mothers worked.

Hundreds are employed in these large factories. They obtain their food for a few pennies from a neighbor conveniently located, whose business it is to furnish them with provisions. I have often watched with a great deal of interest the keen relish with which they gather around the central figure who serves the chosen dish from quaint pottery with a coconut ladle, amid indescribable chatter and undoubted enjoyment. When everyone is satisfied they repair to their homes for the necessary siesta. The hostess clears up her dishes and follows their example and the corner becomes quiet and empty until evening, when the gay scene is repeated.

Their cooking is done out of doors under a bamboo or thatched nipa awning, which protects them from both sun and rain. Many a time has the odorous whiff of a choice tidbit, consisting of spiced fish and garlic, found its way through our drawing room windows from the nipa shacks of our next-door neighbors.

Several times I had occasion to befriend and extend to them a kindness, for which they were most grateful. They showed their appreciation in occasional neighborly gifts of native fruits, a few fresh eggs when they were scarce in the markets, or some Filipino dish which was both dainty and palatable and which I always returned with a typical American delicacy that pleased them very much.

These women are thrifty, kindly, hospitable, appreciative, music-loving, social, peaceable and cleanly. This last from their own point of view, I grant you, and confess to having seen them deliberately take their sandals off at a muddy crossing, wade over in bare feet, which they then slipped into the sandals, and continued on their way. This and many similar instances reminded me that in principle they were not unlike a certain

Young lady of Crete, who was so exceedingly neat, who stood on her head when she got out of bed to keep from soiling her feet."

Notwithstanding all this, I shall always maintain they are clean—from their point of view. And on this subject, upon which I have had many arguments, I feel well backed up by the example of a good old Scotch woman, who was ever fairly "open to conviction, but would like to see the man who could convince her."

tion, but would like to see the man who could convince her."

Now we come to the middle class, who are respectable in every sense. Their houses are spotless, their clothes always neat, their glossy black hair well washed and tidy. These have time to visit and possess at least a shower bath in the house, so they are not obliged to resort to a stream or convenient spigot on the street for the comfort of a bath. They can permit themselves the luxury of a caromatta and perhaps a caraboo whose milk is peddled in picturesque jars by some male member of the family. They will take in a little sewing and fine embroidery. They are very expert with the needle and fond of jewelry, and not a few possess some quite pretty pieces of pearls or diamonds quaintly cut.

Perhaps the first peep at the high-born ladies of the land would not be amiss on the Luneta, which was so beautiful in the evening light. There was the bay, with our great warships against the gorgeous coloring of the setting sun on one side, the picturesque wall of old Manila with its heavy gates, ancient moat, fort and sentries on the other. While the band played in the plaza, where seats were provided for multitudes and every nationality was represented, many varieties of vehicles drove around and on down for a mile, where one turned in a small circle around the Andamun monument, returning between cocoanuts and palms to the music and the crowd.

There one met one's friends and acquaintances, looked upon mestizo beauties and Filipino belles and enjoyed alike the unique scene and delicious whiff of the sea. The mestizas are perhaps the prettiest. They have clear, rich, creamy skin, soft, dark eyes and black hair, which is arranged simply but very becomingly. The full-blooded Filipino is darker and often very handsome. Not infrequently one recognizes the small, even, pretty features which proclaim an Indian ancestor and admires the grace which seems to belong peculiarly to the people of that interesting country.

I formed several pleasant personal friendships with these women, visiting them in their homes and inviting them to mine. Upon more than one occasion when an interpreter could not be obtained I was brave enough to venture alone to make social calls. Considering the very limited knowledge of English on one hand and most imperfect Spanish on the other, I have always flattered myself that we came out of it very creditably. It is astonishing how much one can say under these conditions with a few signs and gestures.

Once, one of our favorite American generals, stationed north of Manila, desired to give a social touch toward cementing the friendship and good fellowship between the two nations, and with this end in view asked an army woman to bring a party up to his headquarters for a few days' visit. Upon their arrival the general gave a reception, to which all the principal people of the town were invited. They returned the hospitality promptly and cordially, thereby promoting much pleasant intercourse.

Among the Filipino ladies there was one who will ever hold an agreeable place in the memory of the party, so bright and pretty was she, so quick at repartee and altogether fascinating. During one of the occasions when they were all together, I do not remember now what gave rise to it, her black eyes fairly flashed fire as she said: "But you will never conquer us! You may go on bringing your soldiers to fight us—millions of them—but you will not conquer us!" Then in the most tragic manner she added: "Up-sur-rec-to! To—the-death!"

It was like a bombshell in the midst of this mild, amicable, peaceable assembly.

An American woman stepped up to her quickly but quietly, gently took both the dark hands in hers and smiled in her eyes as she answered: "My dear, we are not going to bring more soldiers; we don't want to fight you. We want to conquer you with love."

With a low bow, indescribable grace and the prettiest little gesture in the world, she said: "We are conquered."

As the Americans were starting back to Manila, in the midst of the good wishes expressed on both sides, waving of handkerchiefs, good-bys and adieus, the pretty girl with twinkling eyes and saucy voice called out: "Adios! Adios! Poco tiempo—boom—boom!" And everybody laughed. Notwithstanding this unwished-for prediction so prettily spoken, the friendships formed then remained and kind feeling was established fact.

As a rule the Filipinos marry very young and the wedding festivities are often kept up for a week. I was invited to a bridal tiffin upon one memorable occasion which began at ten o'clock and was only at its height when I was compelled to leave at five o'clock, but I enjoyed it thoroughly and found the entertainment most interesting.

Their domestic relations are, fortunately, happy, for there are no divorces in that Catholic land. They smoke usually cigarettes, often a slim, light cigar a quarter of a yard long, which I have had hospitably offered me on many occasions.

Indeed, I learned to love their blue skies and bright sunshine, the beautiful scenery and quaint surroundings and found interest in everything. When I left their country that had grown dear to me in so short a time, many of the women of the Philippines whom I am glad to call my friends still came from Iloilo, Bacoor, Paranaque, Pasay and Pang to bid me Godspeed.
